A volunteer service meaningful to me

There are plenty of homeless children all over the world. I often feel sorry for those who don’t have parents, and those who have to support their lives by themselves. It is truly a pity that these children can not receive love from their parents. They can’t share their happiness with their families, not even to mention the comfort and company from others while they are struggling to get out of the bad situations. In order to help these children to obtain the happiness of childhood, and lead a carefree life, I would like to be a volunteer in the orphanage, not only to make the children smile with joyful, but also make the world a better place.

Being a volunteer in the orphanage, I am willing to share my experiences at school with them, keep them good company and listen to their feelings which are deep inside their minds with all ears. I would also inspire them with encouraging words and teach them to look things from different angles, because how the situation will affect you depends on your attitude towards it. As the saying goes, ”God never shuts one door but he opens another.” If you are determined to overcome the difficulties while facing them, there’s nothing that can stop you from being a victor.

When I can chat with the children in the orphanage respectively, I would do all my best to help them with their schoolwork and build their confidence in their academy so that they will have more brilliant memories at school, which they could recall with satisfaction in the future. I am there in the orphanage to let the children deserve what they supposed to have: the company with encouraging words, the motivation in their academy performance and a positive attitude towards everything in their lifetime.

After the volunteer service in the orphanage, I would feel that the world is filled with hope and smiles. I would come out of the orphanage, with a great sense of achievement because of the children’s smiles with gratefulness. I will have more faith in my life and be more optimistic in everything, because my situations are far more better than those in the orphanage. I do not have time to feel sad about my failures because the children in the orphanage need me. I’m going to offer all I have to them and cheer them up no matter how tough the situation is going to be.

Through the volunteer service in the orphanage, I would realize how tough the difficulties can truly be. While I see the optimistic smiles on their carefree face, I would discover how important it is to be an optimist. I would like to show my respect to those cute angles in the orphanage. Because of their inspiring behavior, I have learned to look everything on the bright side and hang on till the last minute while facing challenges. In addition, I also learn that we need to be victors in our lives, not victims. Those who are in the orphanage already are the victors in their lives because of their positive attitude. If there’s a brick wall in your way, never be afraid, because success seems to be largely a matter of hanging on while others have let go. And a bend on the road isn’t the end of the road, unless you fail to make a turn. Because of the children in the orphanage, I realize these important concepts on beating the obstacles in my life. Thanks to them, I experience the most happiest time in helping others, and it is truly better to give than to receive. All the time I spend in the orphanage would make me become a meaningful person with a meaningful life.
